If they want the services of a painter, carpenter, plasterer, plumber, or any other mechanic or tradesman, they expect to find a card in the paper. They look for it. If they find one the advertising gets a job. Judicious advertising pays. Every local concern, also every tradesman or professional man, of whatever line, should run at least a business card

Railway Commission Investigates C.N.R. Fires

At a meeting of the U.F.A., held on April 26, complaints were raised as to much damage being done in the district north of the Serviceberry by prairie fires starting from the new Canadian Northern line. As a result a motion was passed instructing the secretary to immediately forward night lettergram to the Railway Commissioners informing them of the complaints, and also asking all who have suffered damage to send their bills in to the U.F.A. who would try and have them collected.

The railway commissioners lost no time in taking action, and on Tuesday their representative, Mr L. C. Johnson, arrived in town, and drove out to the district affected for the purpose of investigating the complaints.

It is stated by farmers who have suffered damage that the railway coy have no fireguard along their right-of-way, and that fires have been of frequent occurrence, and much valuable destoyed as well as risk to property and loss of time in fighting these fires.

Constable Resigns

Mr Chas. Anderson, the recently appointed Constable for Strathmore, tendered his resignation at Monday's meeting of the Police Committee. The reason is that he has received the offer of the position as Chief of Police at Red Deer, which he intends to accept. Mr Anderson left the Red Deer force to come here, but recently developments have occurred in the force there which have resulted in the present Chief of Police being suspended, as also several of the other members

Mr Anderson only came here last month, but since appointed has proved a very efficient officer, and the Council and citizens generally are sorry to lose his services. He leaves at the end of this month

RODS FIND AXES UNDER EARTH

Remarkable Result of Rigid Test of Many Diviners' Skill

Paris, Fra.—A number of celebrated scientists recently tested the powers of four wielders of the divining rod in the Bois de Vincennes.

A large deserted quarry underneath a portion of the wood and the diviners were asked to point out the underground galleries and shafts. At the end of the experiment their statements were to be compared by M. Armand Vire, the city surveyor, with a specially constructed chart. The organizers stated that it was l...possible for any of the competitors to have had any previous knowledge of the subterranean passages. M. Vire being the only person aware of the exact positions.

The first man with the divining rod was M. Pelapret, a sturdy peasant, who carried a supple forked wand of ...el. For one hour he walked steadily forward, the hazel wand trembling slightly. Suddenly the wand twitched and M. Pelapret stopping, said: A cavity begins here.

After walking round on the grassy slope to measure the extent of the cavity, he gave the result of his divination to M. Vire, saying that the quarry was over seven yards deep and that it was quite dry.

The other competitors stepped for ward in turn. They used wands of chalcedon, bamboo and copper. Three other underground pits were like the first, marked out by them to a depth of 26ft., with the approximate depth. of 1 foot, the last to use the treasuring rod, went so far as to indicate somewhat vaguely it is true, four galleries which branched off from the main shaft, the six of which he had marked out on the turf.

M. Vire, the surveyor, then unrolled the official map and there was a moment of breathless silence. Every one of the competitors had succeeded with more or less accuracy in marking the caverns or pits which actually existed, and the four galleries spoken of by the last competitor were also traced on the map. The depth given was correct.

As a final proof of the virtues of the magic rod M. Prolat consented to be led blindfolded over the area. And the result he obtained corresponded almost exactly with the first indications he had given.

EVERY WOMAN IS A NURSE

Spread of Patriotic Fervor in Republic Has Caught the Gentler Sex

Paris, France.—The sacrifice demanded of the male population of France by the return to the war of three years' military service has evoked the keenest attention among the women of the country to do something in their turn.

The Society of the Women of France, a Red Cross institution which numbers 150,000 members, publishes an appeal that a number of years in the auxiliary services of the army should be given to women.

The Secretary of the society points out that in time of war 40,000 men would be required for military base hospitals, and that they could be set free for service in the fighting line if sufficient women could be found to take their place.

M. M. de Waleffe, the well-known writer, makes the following original proposals for compulsory hospital training for all women:

After the passage of the three years bill this law we should ask the minister of war to consider the question of women's service. I can well imagine a law, the three principal features of which would be:

Every woman of 20 years of age, married or unmarried, to perform a sure six months' service in the hospitals, and every subsequent ye, to serve for three weeks until the age of 45.

Women with children under 7 years of age need not perform such service.

Women with more than three ... dren are exempt from further service.

REAL DUEL ON STAGE

He and the Barytone Horrify Audience by Fierce and Unexpected Conflict

Paris, France.—The Journal publishes a Madrid telegram reporting an extraordinary and tragic affair which it is said occurred recently at the theatre at Arganuilla de Alba, in the province of Ciudad Real.

It appears that the leading baritone Senor Pardo, and the chief tenor, Senor Martinez, attached to the operatic company at present performing in the town, were deadly enemies as a consequence of rivalry in a love affair, and they had agreed to fight a duel to death.

They had, however, decided to await the termination of the present season in the little town in order that their rivalry might not interrupt the performance.

The season terminated with a performance of "Carmen," and at the close of the third act the spectators were horrified to find themselves the witnesses of a fierce duel between the two singers.

The fight did not last long, the tenor, Martinez, falling dead at the feet of his rival.

There is one thing that may be said to the credit of a small boy; he never pretends to be anyone he doesn't like.

Berlin.—A schoolboy named Dalwitz, aged 12, attending the grammar school at Beuthen, in Silesia, having received a bad report at Easter poured spirit over his clothes and set fire to them. His body was burned to a cinder.

The World's Best Liniment Needed In Every Family From Infancy To Old Age

It was strange. I was positive someone was under my bed, commented the learned man.

STAR MATADORS OPEN SEASON

Two of Spain's Best Men Vanquish Three Fierce Animals Each

Seville, Spain.—In a blaze of sunshine and a scene of rich coloring such as only a Spanish bull ring can produce, the bull-fighting season for the south of Spain opened last week.

The greatest fight of the day took place in the bull ring at 4 p.m., when Rafael Gomez, nicknamed El Gallo (The Cock) and Ricardo Torres, otherwise Bombita (Firework), two of the greatest living matadors, were engaged to meet three bulls each. Gallo is a born fighter, as were his father and grandfather before him. His total of bulls killed is between 1500 and 2000, an only one bad accident has befallen him.

The yearly earnings of a successful fighter are very large, the average fee being $1350 per fight, but even in Spain Gallo has been paid $1750, while in Mexico this has been doubled.

There was certainly nothing fierce about the bulls during the exhibition. Clods of earth had to be thrown to drive several into the open. Two hours before the fight the bulls are separated and shut up in small rooms, without room even to move and are without food and water. Then when the time arrives the first bull is sent into the ring, always with the sun in his eyes, and for the first time in his life he finds himself alone and becomes nervous and afraid.

Great crowds at the booking office were clamoring for the cheaper seats early in the day and at 2.30 not one of the 14,000 seats for sale. All were concerned in the actual fight, drove to the ring in open carriages, and many made their way to the little chapel at the ringside to kneel at the altar before entering the ring.

When the entry of the president and the various other ceremonial preliminaries were concluded a bugle call rang out, and the door of the building opened and the first bull bounded into the ring. He stopped short at the entrance, blinded by the brilliant light. Then looking around he picked out an object and with a fierce bellow and head down made a furious charge.

There he ere was fair work than Gallo did with his second bull. Time after time the bull charged, and without moving his feet, and with one of his body he glided this bull past. Sometimes he would do this kneeling, while again he would pass the bull as he charged past.

When the signal came to kill, the matador took his sword and, having worked the bull into position and taken careful aim, would make the charge. With unerring precision the matador would run the bull sank to the ground dead.

VICTIM OF PRIDE-MADNESS

Dublin Jury Finds Her Incapable of Managing Her Affairs

Dublin, Ireland.—The mental condition of a haughty baroness was inquired into by the registrar in lunacy and a jury in Dublin. The lady is Baroness Gonsenge, who is at present in an asylum at Nice.

Counsel explained that the baroness was born in Ireland, and in 1892 married Baron Sternberg, a Russian by whom she had two children, a daughter being now in an asylum.

In 1893 the baroness was declared to be of unsound mind, and was kept under the care of the lord chancellor until 1900, when she went abroad and married her second husband, who also predeceased her.

The baron's had peculiar form of mental trouble. She had a haughty disposition, and thought it beneath her to associate with her. The doctor in the asylum at Nice testified that she was suffering from intense agitation, refused to be washed and refused to go to bed.

She had pride-madness or delusion of grandeur. She thought the waiter was trying to poison her. She had bombarded her solicitor with telegrams, seven arriving in eight days, and thought and her son were misusing her money.

Baron Sternberg, a son, gave evidence, and the jury found that the baroness was of unsound mind, incapable of managing herself or her affairs.

SOLDIER HOUSEMAIDS

Vienna New Layer Tells What Officer's Servant Should be

Vienna.—The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung says that a new service manual for Austrian soldiers who act as servants to officers has just been issued, written by one who has had long... of experience. It is laid down that a soldier-servant must know a housemaid's duties thoroughly and also have a complete knowledge of valeting. He must know how to wait at table, and be an expert at opening champagne bottles. He should also have practice in washing ...s and cleaning out birds' cages. These are his duties in times of peace.

When on campaign or at maneuver time he must, on arriving at a strange place, immediately forage for suitable furniture for the officers' quarters. He should then clean the windows and all the mosquitos, flies and other vermin, and scatter insect powder on the floor. Such, says the Arbeiter Zeitung, are the duties of the brave defenders of our hearths and homes.

Frances, said the little girl's mother who was entertaining visitors, you came downstairs so noisily that you could be heard all over the house. Now go back and come downstairs properly.

Frances retired and in a few moments reentered the parlor.

Did you hear me come down that time, mamma?

No, my dear; that time you came down like a lady.

Yes, mamma, explained the child, I slid down the banister.

Unwanted Quadruplets

Berlin.—A mason at Neuenberg, Germany, sent to the mayor a wool lined hamper containing four babies to which his wife had given birth, with a request that the municipality should adopt them as he had not the means to keep them.

JEALOUSY LEADS TO ARREST

Thinking Booty Would be Given Her Rival, Woman Betrays Accomplices

Berlin. — Three thieves who stole a Russian countess' jewelry valued at over $25,000 have been captured.—Frau Pferfer (Baby) in Berlin, and her two accomplices, Frau Berg and Krause, the mooncied lieutenant in Munich. Baby, when arrested, made a clean breast of the entire transaction, and, accompanied by a detective, traveled to Munich, where she arranged a meeting with the two men with the knowledge of the detective. All three are now in prison, as the Russian woman is again in possession of her trinkets. In addition, a jeweler with whom they had made arrangements for the disposal of their booty, has been arrested. He had already unfastened the stones and melted down the settings.

It seems that Baby was moved to her treachery by jealousy of another woman friend of Kolberg, a dancer. She feared that Kolberg might be inclined to bestow some of the stolen property on this rival. When Frau Pfeifer's husband heard of his wife's criminal dealings, he committed suicide in Berlin.

Merely Wanted to Know

The daughter of the house had just returned from a visit with her Western cousins, during which she was extolling the virtue of her intended.

Oh, mother, she exclaimed, He's just grand. So square, so upright! So highly polished!

Why! even to his notes there is such a sympathetic tone that sometimes I wonder if I am not reading the music of the gods!

Mercy's sake, child! interrupted mother, are you talking about a young man or a piano?

Warts are unsightly blemishes, and corns are painful growths. Holloway's Corn Cure will remove them.

There! said the young wife proudly, as she deposited the hot plate carefully on the table. That's the first pie that I ever made without any help; all done myself!

So it is! exclaimed her husband enthusiastically, looking it over critically, meanwhile. And as long as it is the very first, my dear, don't you think that, instead of cutting it, it would be nice to keep it for a souvenir? How would it do to have it framed?

DEATH ENDS IN JAIL

Girl Takes Poison While Priest Prays Over Father's Grave

St. Petersburg.—With the advent of spring the number of suicides or attempted suicides in St. Petersburg has reached daily average of about ten. Most are due to abject poverty.

Recently a young girl walked the attendant priest ... the Volkovo Cemetery to recite a memorial service over the grave of her father. She sobbed bitterly, and when the priest and sacristan began to sing the beautiful Eternal Memory, took a small bottle out of her pocket and hastily swallowed the contents. She was taken to a hospital in a dying condition. In a letter she said, quoting the title of Dostoefsky's novel, that since the death of her father she had been so humiliated and insulted that life had become unbearable.

Concrete is the cheapest building material

WHETHER for a silo, a milk-house, or a million bushel grain elevator, concrete is the most economical building material in use today.

Concrete never requires repairs, and the saving in repair-expense alone makes the greater economy of using concrete more apparent every day. The cost of other building materials is constantly increasing.

The cost of concrete is being reduced.

Canada Cement

which Canadian farmers use, with their own sand, stone and gravel to make concrete, is the only ingredient you have to buy.

We have, by reason of our large output and scientific methods, been able to bring the price of "Canada" Cement so low that it is within the reach of everyone.

An increase in demand results in a greater economy of production, and when conditions have warranted it, we have from time to time, shared this saving with the consumer by reducing the price of Canada Cement. The demand will continue to increase—as fast as farmers learn of concrete's superiority over other materials.

When you buy cement, see that you get "Canada" Cement, by so doing you will assure the complete success of all your concrete work.

Send a post card for our book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It is free.

There is a Canada Cement dealer in your neighborhood.

"Get Your Canadian Home from the Canadian Pacific"

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years with interest at six per cent. per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, forming the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price. For illustrated literature, maps and full particulars, apply to

SATURDAY, MAY 10 1913

The irrigation water is now turned on with the opening of May. From present appearances it looks as if "much water will run under the bridges," as the old proverb has it, before the present dispute on the classification of irrigable land is settled. As the interests of the two parties to the dispute are the same, viz., the prosperity of the district, an amicable settlement is bound to be reached, however. Meanwhile the dispute is doing nothing to retard the development of the district in fact, the recent decision of the Dominion Government is doing much to accelerate it, as it gives a bigger sense of security to the farmers.

The Government have been petitioned to appoint a Royal commission to take evidence here on the subject, but it is not known whether they consider what has already been done sufficient or whether they will accede to the request.

In these modern times, and in a new country, it would be thought that the days of "pocket boroughs" were over, but it would seem that a replica of "Old Sarum" has been established in northern Alberta. The new constituency of Clearwater at the last election cast exactly 103 votes. There were three candidates, the highest getting the enormous total of 40 votes. But that isn't all, as R. B. would say. Allegations are made that a number of votes were illegally imported. The whole constituency only cast about two-third the votes that were cast in Strathmore polling division, and yet the member elected by these forty votes, will have as much say and as much voting power as the member for Gleichen riding, which includes Gleichen, Strathmore, Langdon, and a number of other towns and villages. Politics altogether apart, it seems to call for some investigation into the system on which redistribution is based.

Tha "Homestead" Map

The 11th edition of a publication which should prove of value to every person interested in the progress of settlement throughout the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, is now being issued from the Railway Lands Branch of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. This interesting compilation, which is known as the "Homestead" map shows in a most graphic way the land situation up to the beginning of the present year, also the standing of each quarter section according to the records of the Department at that date.

Nothing conveys so forcibly to the eye the rapid manner in which the land available for entry is being taken up, as does this map of many colors, illustrating as it does by a comparatively simple system of coloring, the standing with respect to every quarter-section up to the beginning of the present year.

Irrespective of the information with respect to lands which have been homesteaded or otherwise disposed of, the publication contains complete information with respect to Indian reserves, timber berths, grazing leases, post offices, railways, topography, etc.

Like so many of the publications of the Department of the Interior, this latest edition of the Homestead map is being distributed free of charge. A copy of the publication may be obtained upon application to the Superintendent of Railway Lands, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

TUDOR NOTES

May 6

Miss Mary Boyd, of Calgary, is visiting Mrs. McMillan, of Genrose, spending Friday with Helen and Bernice Schafer.

Mrs. W. A. Mathews and children have returned from a visit to Oregon.

Charles W. Schafer was seen in Standard this week. He is so made a trip to Crowfoot last Sunday.

Seeding is progressing favorably in this district. Good weather with slight exception holds, and the crop will shortly all be in excellent shape.

Mr. James H. Rennie has secured a purebred registered shorthorn bull, "Sir Robert" by name. The animal is by far the best bull that has ever been brought into this district and will be a great benefit to all cattle owners in the vicinity and a benefit which everyone interested should take advantage of—"the bull is half the herd." This Bull was personally selected from a large number by Dr. Rutherford, of the C.P.R., and is one of the many steps the Company is taking to assist the settlers of the irrigation block to get into good stock.

The new store at Tudor is doing a very satisfactory business. It shows that potentially Tudor is the best business town in the irrigation block. Business men of all kinds looking for an opening will do well to look up Tudor. It is on the map. There is just now an especially inviting opening for a general blacksmith.

Prairie fires have been unusually frequent during the past week. Two fires of considerable extent swept over the district lately, but luckily did no further damage than burn a few hay stacks and spoilt a lot of good grass. The last fire came very near the buildings of H. T. Kesver and caused him considerable anxiety for a while, altho he was well protected by fire guards.

It is reported that H. Dand, of Pendleton, Ore., will shortly begin to fence his holding of some twelve sections of land a few miles east of Tudor, with a view of stocking it with cattle. This land is the finest grass land in this part of the country and should carry a large number of stock profitably.

H. C. Best and F. W. Schafer have been laid up with accidents to their engines last week. Wm. Rudd is steaming nicely following had no mishap so far this season. His old engineer, who some time ago had his leg broken, has returned to others and is able to operate the engine in spite of his handicap.

It is reported that some unknown person took several shots at the workmen of the nearby C.P.R. camp while they were on the job. Whether the teams were mistaken for gophers or grizzly bears has not been ascertained. Whoever the rifleman was he shortly pulled up

War on Cutworms

Last year considerable damage was done to crops throughout Southern Alberta by cutworms, and last fall petitions were sent from various bodies including the local Farmers Union. As a result of these petitions the Dominion Government appointed Mr. E. H. Strickland, a well-known entomologist, to investigate the best means of accomplishing their destruction, and his report in Lethbridge several weeks ago, and will remain in the province all summer. The Lethbridge district has suffered very severely from the ravages of this insect, which rejoices in spite of its diminutive size, in the impressive title of "Peroscagrotis delorata," and it is hoped that Mr. Strickland will provide an effective means of accomplishing its extermination.

Mr. Arthur Gibson, chief assistant entomologist of the Dominion experimental farm, Ottawa, arrived at Lethbridge on April 30 to superintend the initial campaign against the cutworm in conjunction with F. H. Strickland, who will have charge during the summer campaign. Mr. Gibson came direct from Ottawa to be on hand for the first outbreak of these pests.

The fine stallion "Atlanta," which Mr Wm. Marshall bought this week from Mr Mackinnon of Langdon, will be at the Demonstration Farm Friday and at Boles Livery Saturday of this week.

MULTIPLICATION OF SMOKESTACKS IN THE THREE PRAIRIE PROVINCES

Winnipeg Furnishes an Object Lesson in the Fruits of a Stable Trade Policy—Factory Chimneys are the New Landmarks in the West

During sixty days, ending in the latter part of November of last year as many as one hundred and nine letters were received by the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau from genuine manufacturing concerns, some of which, recognizing the importance of securing access to the western market, made special applications for information by telegraph. From Eastern Canada five letters were received including that of an Ontario automobile concern and a Quebec stove manufacturer. The state of Minnesota furnished six enquiries two being from St. Paul and two from Minneapolis. Three Michigan manufacturers are making searching enquiries regarding their respective trades, and Iowa sent for information regarding five lines of manufactured goods, varying from steel metal products to harvesting machinery. The central states were represented by ten enquiries, Ohio sending nine and Indiana only one. These represent a variety of manufactures varying from a glove to motor truck factory. There were nine Wisconsin applications for information along manufacturing lines, four hailing from Milwaukee, a number of automobile firms of international repute being amongst the number from that state. No less than sixteen Chicago manufacturers made application for information regarding the manufacturing possibilities during (Winnipeg's Industrial growth in ten years 1900 to 1910).

This illustration shows at a glance the enormous increase in the output of the factories of Winnipeg during the past few years. The Manitoba Government's figures (amounting last year to more than $15,000,000) of the immense amount of capital invested annually in industrial concerns in that city provides substantial evidence of the multiplication of smokestacks in Winnipeg and the enormous business increase associated therewith. A similar picture of lesser proportions but of almost equal ratio of increase might be drawn of a score of "farther west" cities whose smokestacks are becoming larger, taller and more numerous.

the past sixty days and there were four other applicants from the state of Illinois. Eastern United States manufacturers including six from Philadelphia and six from New York city wanted to know what Winnipeg offers in the lines they are interested in; and the remainder of the letters were enquiries from ten New England industrial centers. The Western States contributed nine letters for information, four of these being from Kansas City. The state of California sent a similar number of enquiries. Industrial information was requested by six manufacturers in the Southern States, one from a terra cotta manufacturer in Missouri who believes that Winnipeg is the best shipping centre for Canada and a Jefferson City clothing manufacturer who asked for information of a detailed character regarding the cost of construction of a factory, etc. These hundred and one enquiries received, in addition to many personal calls from the manufacturer, represent a wide range of manufacturing activity. Many of them are highly technical and have to be dealt with with great care after painstaking research into the conditions pertinent thereto. Winnipeg's 44,000-h.p. 600 cycle hydro-electric power plant which furnishes power and light to manufacturers at cost, is awakening wide interest in manufacturing circles all over North America and Great Britain. The building permits at Winnipeg to date show that well over a million and a quarter was expended on new factories, extensions to old, during the past year.

Winnipeg's factories represent a large army of skilled workmen. About two out of every three of them are married men with families. The wages these workers receive is paid over the counters of Western merchants, and a great deal of it finds its way into the pockets of the Western farmer who is growing products for the Winnipeg market. The factory is the agency which causes the circulation of money at home.

RETAIN PROSPERITY BY MIXED FARMING

Dr. Rutherford Points Out the Necessity for Diversified Agriculture to War off Depression

Dr. Rutherford, superintendent of Animal Husbandry, C.P.R. department of Natural Resources, Calgary, in a recent address of welcome on the necessity of diversified agriculture in order to continue the prosperity of Canada. "If a man breaks up land and robs it of a few grain crops," said Dr. Rutherford, "he does not build up permanent prosperity. He belongs to the class who take what they can and then get away. There are many of us, however, who are interested in the permanent prosperity of the country, not only or ourselves but for our children. This future prosperity depends upon the proper conservation of the fertility of the soil. There are a few garden spots where grain can be continuously grown without making the ground sterile, but this is not generally true. To harvest without enriching the soil, is like drawing on a bank account without making any deposits. We have seen exactly what in the United States of land being skinned and should profit by their mistakes. In Great Britain the average yield of wheat is from 30 to 40 bushels an acre, because the fertility of the soil is carefully preserved. This is accomplished by the rotation of crops and by artificial fertilizers. Unless we amend our methods we will suffer in the future."

The factory follows immediately in the wake of mixed farming which is necessary to support the factory worker with food at reasonable prices. The United States is the best example of William McKinley's key to prosperity namely: "Plant the Factory Beside the Farm."

DAIRYING IN CANADA

Home Consumption Has Made Big Inroads on the Export Trade

Dairy production, under normal conditions, continues to show a healthy growth in Canada. The increased home consumption has reduced the surplus for export to the extent of $7,962,823, if the record year of 1912-3 is compared with 1910-11. On the other hand the annual home consumption has increased by at least $25,000,000 during that period. Not withstanding the larger demands of the home trade the exports have increased since 1908. In spite of a lower price for cheese in 1910, which affected the returns to the extent of about $1,000,000, the exports of all dairy products for the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1911, amounted to $23,704,793, or $1,703,116 more than in 1908-9. The total production of milk and its products for 1910 is estimated at $100,000,000.

Watson it was decided to engage five weed inspectors, for 25 days each at rate of $4 per day, each inspector to furnish his own conveyance, and to work under the supervision of the Councillor of the division to which he is appointed, each Councillor to appoint the inspector for his own division

Green, a resolution was passed to provide for the borrowing of $4000 from the Union Bank of Canada for school purposes for three months, and that the several amounts required by the different school districts in the Municipality (as per their requests) for present use for school purposes, be paid

ASSESSMENT REVISION

The following accounts were read and ordered paid: Langdon Pharmacy $63.96, J. Mackenzie $20, and W. G. Way $1.40

The next regular meeting was set for June 21, at 10 a.m.

W. G. WAY,
Secy.-Treasurer

The weather during the past week has been rather broken. On Wednesday morning a considerable fall of snow occurred, changing later to rain, which continued all Thursday, and part of Friday. Farmers generally are well pleased at the rainfall, which they state will be of great benefit, especially if followed by warm weather.

Telephone Extensions

During the last week a member of the Government telephone staff was in the district getting contracts for rural telephones signed up. Two new phones lines have now been signed up for, one extending south of Strathmore to the Bow River, and another north to within two miles of Nightingale The former will follow the present long distance line which goes five miles south and then turns east The new line will continue righton the section allowance to the river and probably to several farms south of the river.

The north line runs as far as the farm of Mr John A. MacKenzie, about two miles south of Nightingale. The poles for these new lines were unloaded some weeks ago, and construction work will probably be started very shortly.

The system the Government are following in putting in these rural phones is that they only go over a district after a petition has been received from that district making application for telephone facilities. Some surprise will be felt that the north line does not go as far north as Nightingale, as there are a number of people there who are desirous of phones, but we understand that they have only themselves to thank for not being included in the present extensions. Over a year ago a phone petition was circulated, from Strathmore north. It was largely signed up, and got to Nightingale, but that was the last of it, for it has not been seen again. After waiting for four months, and not having the petition returned, the people included in the present extensions circulated another petition, and sent it to Edmonton.

There are at present two rural phones from Strathmore, one south and one east, but there is lots of room for more phones. The proper course for the people to take who want phones is to get petitions circulated, and submit at the earliest possible date. The sooner the petitions are in the sooner the phones will be built. With the constant demands for phones all over the province it often a considerable time before the Government can take action on petitions. The people around Nightingale who want phones should resurrect their old petition, or get a new one circulated. A rural phone only costs $15.00 per annum, and is worth much more than that for the convenience it affords.

Baseball

The baseball season is upon us, but so far very little has been heard of Bow Valley League, which has been quite a feature in local sport during the past two summers. A meeting, has, however, been called for Monday to discuss the situation, and steps will probably be taken to put the local team and league on their feet again for the coming season.

The other towns composing the league last year, Bassano and Gleichen, seem to be as backward this year as Strathmore, and no public move has yet been made in either of them. However, it is probable that all that is wanted is a little warmer weather to bring the baseball bug into activity in the brains of the fans.

The Bow Valley trophy is at present in the hands of Strathmore, who had an easy victory last year, and they may be depended upon to put up a strong fight for the possession of the trophy this year when the league gets going.

The first match of the season was played on Monday evening, between Strathmore bachelor and benedicts, and the benedicts won by the score 9-4 after an exciting four innings The timely approach of darkness prevented the score from going any higher. Reg Henry pitched for the married men, and Ledmill for the bachelors.

All interested in local sport should attend the meeting called for Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the Maple Leaf Hotel. The whole athletic situation will be discussed, and steps taken for the formation of baseball and football clubs.

A baseball match which will prove of great interest to all will be played on Friday, 16th inst., on the Stathmore Baseball Diamond. The teams will be composed entirely of Amateurs, the fat men against the slim men. Nine men will be chosen from the following slims; W. S. Bush, J. G Troy, M. Garrett, H.Nock, A. Girvin, R. S. Stockton, A. N. Reay, W. E. Brown, G. H. Patrick, H. Freeman Demonstration Farm, Chas. Beddington, A. R. Laidlaw. The fats (and it is hereby understood that none under the 180 lb mark will be legible to play) will be chosen from the following: F. Burnham, J. Y. Arenson, J. H.M. Martin, T. B. Eves, H. Stanley, A. W. Miller, J. W. Giffen ,F.C. Boles, F. T. McElheny, J. A. MacDonald, C. W. Chase, and Geo. Stevens.

An admission fee of 25 cents a head will be charged the proceeds to go to the baseball club. So all should see this game (because it will be a fast one) and besides help the team out financially.

Drowning Accident At Namaka Dam

George Ansell, a blacksmith's helper, employed on the construction of the Southern Alberta Land Co's Dam on the Bow River southeast of Strathmore, was on Sunday morning last drowned in the dam in a boat and drowned in presence of a number of people, who were helpless to render assistance.

The body of another man, which had been in the water for a considerable time past was recovered in the vicinity of the dam this week.

Dr Girvin, coroner for the district, is going to the dam to-day to investigate. He states that this is the fifth fatal accident which has occurred since construction of the dam was commenced.

BABY'S PORCH BASKET

Easily Made Swinging Couch for Use Out of Doors

A baby basket on the porch, where the youngster can get a quiet encore and plenty of air at the same time, is a thing every house with a baby in it should have. And it can be had with little trouble or expense by any person who can tie a hard knot or wield a paint brush.

A common, ordinary clothes basket is secured, to the four corners of which a length of stout clothes line is attached. Two hooks are fastened in the ceiling of the porch and the basket is swung by the ropes from these hooks.

Heavy cord is tied from rope to rope about two feet from the basket and this is used as a frame on which to hang a mosquito netting. The basket is painted or stained as the fancy dictates. The cord framework can be used to support a wind shield of heavy cloth. denim is a good kind, and a cover over the top of the basket. With plenty of bedding in the bottom of the basket and the coverings properly adjusted baby can be made as comfortable as a crib and get plenty of air

"GOGGLE-EYED GHOST"

Queer Little Animal With an Uncanny Face

This is the "goggle-eyed ghost," or tarsier, a strange little animal of the lemur family, which lives in the eastern Archipelago and is nocturnal in its habits. It is about the size of a squirrel, has large ears, a long tufted tail and extremely large eyes. Its preferred food is a lizard.

The trees being planted mostly are maples and willows, which have proved themseves most suitable for climatic conditions here, and when several years have passed they will have a beneficial effect on the aspect of the countryside, besides which they will probably increase the fecundity of the soil by acting as wind-breaks, and conserving moisture. It is well known that trees have the effect of increasing the annual rainfall. No farm should be without an abundant supply of young trees, and now is the time to plant them.

CHAPTER I.

A Startling Commission

Is Sir Richard Hanley at home?

No, sir, but excuse me, are you Mr. Murgatroyd?

I am.

Then, sir, would you be pleased to wait? Sir Richard will be home in a few minutes.

And the footman showed the way across the white hall, to the small sanctum set apart for the master.

Murgatroyd was a barrister by profession; a journalist by choice; a man of the world by the attrition of multiple experience—and still young; and Sir Richard Hanley's study interested him because he peopled it with fancies, which could not be widely divergent from facts.

Within these four walls history had been shaped during these last few throbbing weeks. From it had gone forth decisions which had affected the markets in Capel Court and Wall street; cablegrams in which the selection of a world-mart war or peace, of the world had never met Sir Richard Hanley. He had seen him scores of times in ovation at political receptions, in the great studios on Show Sunday, at meetings where he had been cheered to the echo, and when he had been howled down and almost hustled—in the House of Commons shaping a policy from the corner seat of the front bench on the Government side, or with masterly analysis sticking one to pieces, when in the cold shade of Opposition.

Murgatroyd, who had never shaken him by the hand, was not aware that the great man—greater than ever today—even knew his name. Yet in his pocket lay a letter of three lines—

Sir Richard Hanley will be much obliged if Mr. Murray Murgatroyd will kindly call upon him between the hours of 6 and 7 p.m. tomorrow—Jan. 16th.

21 Curzon Street, Mayfair.

No reason was given. Sir Richard was a man who habitually anticipated obedience, and generally got it. Like a street block before a skilful driver, engagements had a trick of vanishing away, before his nod.

He had nodded—the nod of the nineteenth-century Jove—at Murgatroyd; and Murgatroyd has come.

The door opened, and the visitor rose, expecting to meet his host and learn the reason of his summons, when a young girl hastily entered.

I beg your pardon. I thought my father was here; I want him particularly.

But Margatroyd was paying little attention to what she said. He was not insensible to beauty which ran on ordinary lines; but this face impressed because of its rarity. However, he managed to stammer out—

I am waiting for Sir Richard—by appointment. I was told he would be home shortly. Then seeing her disappointment and underlying distress—Can I be of any service? Has anything happened to distress you?

Miss Hanley choked down a sob.

Yes, I'm dreadfully put out; but I don't know whether you can help me—or even father, she added. For I was robbed in the Park, oh, not violently! A man brushed against me as I was running after my dog Dart—a dachund; he apologized for a moment before he passed on; and I thought he was a gentleman. When I caught Charley—I always take him for a walk every day, unless I am riding or driving with father—I was sad to see what time it was, and my watch was gone.

Here Miss Hanley began to cry in earnest.

It was given me by my mother just before she died, she sobbed.

Murgatroyd would like to have taken her in his arms and comforted her; but the situation would hardly have justified the proceeding. Besides, it might not have produ ed the desired effect, father the reverse.

I am so sorry! Are you sure it was stolen? The watch might have dropped in the grass, when you p'cked up the dog.

For answer, Miss Hanley held up the chain. While Murgatroyd was examining it, perhaps with unnecessary care, for it was evident, at a glance, that the links had been snapped with a sharp instrument of some kind, Sir Richard came into the room.

Neither of them heard him open the door. He naturally seemed surprised to see his daughter and the stranger in such close juxtaposition. Miss Hanley threw her arms round Sir Richard's neck; and then rapidly related the circumstances.

So it came about that the Journalist was the third person in the interview which followed between Sir Richard Hanley and his daughter, which was the reason for the summons by which he had been summoned.

We must, of course, communicate with the police at once; but I am afraid, my dear, the chances of recovery are small. Was there anything by which you could identify the man who brushed against you?

Yes, father, even to that second I could not help noticing how deep-set his eyes were—how his brows overhung them; his eyebrows were very thick.

I am sure I should know him again.

Sir Richard gave further instructions to his footman, and then Murgatroyd's face. As a journalist he was brought into contact with all sorts and conditions of men. He thought he could put a name to this one. He intended to make absolutely sure.

Will you leave it to me, Sir Richard? I know the Scotland Yard people pretty well, and I fancy I can help them to shrewd idea of the culprit.

Miss Hanley's face brightened up. Her smiles chased away the tears.

Oh, thank you; I shall be grateful if you can help us.

You can't expect gratitude if you fail, Mr. Murgatroyd. It rewards successful effort—gentlemen, I believe, are generous.

The statesman had spoken in his clear-cut tones, with marked emphasis.

Oh, I didn't mean that. I shall appreciate your kindness and trouble just the same.

Murgatroyd bowed and smiled.

Now, my dear you must leave us. Mr. Murgatroyd has come for a few minutes' conversation with me.

Miss Hanley took her cue with a little pout, and left the room with Murgatroyd.

I don't keep him too long; I want him. Besides, I want you to find my watch for me.

I will do my best. And there was something about him which implied that when Murgatroyd worked hard, he he subsequently succeeded.

Sir Richard was standing watching him through his pincenez, while he was looking at Maud Hanley. It was a glance that read men with remarkable accuracy. Hanley was difficult to be deceived. His look cut to the quick like a scapel. The young journalist he did not look dissatisfied.

You wonder naturally why I sent for you?

I could hardly think you knew of my existence, Sir Richard.

The statesman smiled.

You have been known to me for some time through private sources. Half a year ago—Sir Richard was by this time sitting at his table by the window—a memorandum pinned to a standing desk—it was on January 7 last year, an article appeared on the front page of the Pioneer on the Tonquin difficulty. It was signed Murgatroyd. The writer could not have known what I did; but intuition had helped him. He had followed the course diplomacy was taking. In this respect the article was singular. Journalism, as a rule unless it is inspired, is content with a limited vision. I thought little of it at the time; but as foreign complications ensued, I noticed again and again the same hand—recognizing it more by the boldness of its outlook, than by any peculiar turns of phraseology. I wished to know whose pen had raised the Pioneer into prominence—and my notice, my secretary found out, had been your chief. The name given me was, Mr. Murray Murgatroyd.

Sir Richard paused to note the effect of his words. There was an unmistakable glow of pleasure beneath the journalist's clear skin, suffusing his olive complexion with a warmer hue than its wont.

You are very kind.

I am just. That is all. I have little time to be kind. Sir Richard went on:

But I did not send for you to tell you this, or to waste your time. I sent for you because I was in need of some one with bright intelligence, a gentleman, and at the same time not connected with the Government. Sir Richard paused and then proceeded. Whether you accept my suggestions or not, you will regard them as absolutely confidential.

Certainly, Sir Richard.

I may say that I have obtained the permission of your chief to make use of your services for a time, if you are agreeable.

There is nothing I should like better.

Wait a little! Mr. Gilfray, the editor of the Pioneer does not know the details of the work I have in view for you; but he is willing to be responsible for it, if necessary. You are aware of all the particulars of the Transaplian controversy which have reached the public. In fact, an article you wrote in the Pioneer a couple of nights ago shows that you have mastered the somewhat difficult points of the triangular duel with your usual accuracy and judgment. What you do not know I am about to tell you. Sir Richard fixed his pincenez on the bridge of his nose and was watching Murgatroyd with his usual concentrated attention.

I am very much interested.

As you have gathered, the whole crux of the situation lies in a narrow strip of land, not more than a few thousand acres.

If eighty years ago there was documentary evidence that those acres were recognized by the Transaplian Government as within the sphere of their influence, the rest follows. Sir Richard unfolded a map which was before him, with other documents, and indicated the place with his finger. Murgatroyd had drawn his chair forward, and examined the map with intelligent interest.

GERMAN ROYAL WEDDING

Prince May be Asked to Renounce English Title

Berlin.—The Phenish Westphalian Gazette, Essen, one of the leading organs of the German armor-plate press, expresses the wish that Prince Arthur, heir of the duke of Cumberland, who is engaged to the kaiser's daughter, may be induced to renounce his British title of prince before his marriage.

Owing to the death of King George of Greece, brother of the duchess of Cumberland, the latter will rank, according to the Tageblatt, will be as simple as possible, and only the immediate relatives of the two families will be present. The duke of Cumberland's visit to Potsdam is postponed until after the king's funeral.

FRIENDS HELP

St. Paul Park Incident

"After drinking coffee for breakfast always a feli feeling would arise, leaving no ambition to get to my morning duties. Then in about an hour or so a weak, nervous derangement of the heart and stomach would come over me, and a sudden fear would frequently have to lie down."

Tea is just as harmful, because it contains caffeine the same as found in coffee.

After three years I had severe headaches; stomach finally became affected and digestion so impaired that I had serious chronic dyspepsia and constipation. A lady, for many years State President of the W. C. T. U., told me she had been greatly benefited by quitting coffee and using Postum; she was troubled for years with asthma. She said it was no cross to quit coffee when she found she could have as delicious an article as Postum.

Another lady, who had been troubled with chronic dyspepsia for years, had immediate relief on coming to coffee and using Postum. Still another friend told me that Postum was a God-send, for heart trouble had long been relieved after leaving off coffee and taking on Postum.

So many such cases came to my notice that I concluded coffee was the cause of my trouble and I quit and took up Postum. I am more than pleased to say that my days of trouble have disappeared. I am well and happy.

FANATIC FOLLOWERS GO MAD

Russian Peasants Who Believe That Christ Lived in Russia, Not Palestine

St. Petersburg, Russia.—An Archangel correspondent sends a moving description of the sufferings of the Moldavian peasants who in mid-winter followed the fanatical monk Iliodor on foot 500 miles from the Podolia government to the Muromsky monastery, on the Onega river, where he was banished.

Ragged, starving and frost-bitten, death threatened them all on the snowy wastes whe the Archangel authorities sent a force of rural guards to stop their march and arrest their leader and telegraphed to the Red Cross Society, urgently asking for medical aid. Some of the pilgrims had money in comparative plenty, for before starting northward they had sold their belongings, but it was of no avail to them in the frozen wilderness.

Their number was underestimated in the first accounts. It was well over 1000, including a great proportion of women and children. They were sent back to their homes by train in warlord vans. The correspondent witnessed the departure of one party from the station of Nyndoma. Frostbitten cheeks, ears, fingers and toes were the rule rather than the exception. Nearly all the pilgrims were begrimed with dirt. Many women's children were in hysterics. The occupants of the van were squatted on the floor praying with open Bibles before them.

The correspondent questioned the pilgrims as to the hold which Iliodor has had over them. Incredible as it may sound in the twentieth century, in a civilized country, the following is the gist of the replies he received:

The followers of Iliodor believe that Jesus Christ had appeared in the Onega region and not in Palestine. He was seized there and was taken elsewhere for crucifixion. Although Christ was dead, the spirit of St. John designates our Lord and Innocentius (Reference has been made to telegrams to the authorities from peasants between Onega and Onega). Otherwise why was Iliodor's meeting room for 1000 persons in the Muromsky monastery when the monks only numbered 100? This was the will of the Lord. They had been shown in a picture of Innocentius portrayed as Jesus Christ with a nimbus encircling his head and a cross and chalice in his hands.

The arrest of Innocentius only served to confirm their belief in the divinity, and they recounted how, when the rural guards came to arrest him, and the officer in charge fired a blank cartridge in order to intimidate them, his rifle had misfired three times.

A similar miracle had occurred previously at Balta, in Podolia, when an overzealous police officer insulted Innocentius and advanced towards him threateningly. Innocentius looked straight into his eyes, and said quietly: Neither thy hand nor thy foot shall stir, after which the officer fell dead, as though paralysed.

On being confronted by the rural guards the pilgrims gathered round Innocentius, and had to be dragged away before the troops could be arrested. The vice governor of Archangel approached Innocentius: Where are you going? he asked him.

I am going to seek the new Zion, was the answer of the band of pilgrims repeated in song: We are going to seek the new Zion.

Innocentius' followers to the far north included his mother and five sisters. When the rural guards attracted thousands of pilgrims to the local meeting place, the latter was held to be was credited of casting out devils. There is an appalling amount of lunacy in that part of Russia, generally ascribed to the peasantry eating a peculiar unripe maize instead of leavened bread.

The Balta district became an absolute hotbed of mad fanatics, for whom were brought there in bands. This seems to have been the principal reason of Innocentius' banishment. Several immortal investigators maintain that there is nothing immoral in his teaching or his life.

GERMANS ARE AMUSED

Well-Known Naval Writer Urges That Invasion of Great Britain is Impossible

Berlin, Germany.—The speech of Col. Seely, British minister of war, on the army estimates attracts considerable attention here, especially his statement regarding the new committee to investigate the possibilities of invasion; also his important statement regarding England's strength in the air.

Colonel Seely is generally believed to have had in his mind the possibility of a German invasion, an idea which, whenever mentioned, causes much amusement here, or astonishment that a nation so politically mature allows itself to be obsessed with this fear.

Captain Persius, the well-known naval writer, is amazed that the British minister of war even discusses such a possibility, for it is utterly impossible that Germany has the ever thought of or could ever succeed in landing troops in England. Before this occurs the entire British fleet must have suffered annihilation, and neither now nor in the future will the German navy be strong enough for this feat.

Although several writers in the Press are inclined to question Colonel Seely's statement that the British aeroplanes are the best in the world, Captain Persius admits it, and recognizes the tremendous progress which British aviation has made, especially in hydroplanes. England has already some specially models, with stations on the North Sea, while Germany has not yet decided on any type.

With regard to airships, Captain Persius does not agree that they would be useless to England for Indian and colonial purposes, Captain Persius agreed with the Daily Chronicle that the field fire is useless, but in England they are necessary for home defense, and recent experiments in this country prove that they are suitable for opposing aeroplanes. Machine guns are easily placed on the upper decks of Zeppelins.

BATTLE WITH BANDITS

Landowner and His Valet Struck Dead in Russia

St. Petersburg.—A telegram from Lemberg announces that a number of armed bandits attacked in the night the house of a landowner named Venolsky, in the Jaslo district of Galicia.

Velonisky refused to surrender, and he and his valet and a workman, armed with revolvers, for a long time resisted the rifle fire of their assailants.

Eventually Venolinsky was killed. The bandits then rushed the house and shot the valet dead. The workman was wounded, but Venolinsky's daughter escaped in a well-horsed cart.

The police are scouring the district, but have hitherto failed to capture the criminals.

FIVE MILLION TO SWAT FLY

Nation-Wide Crusade to be Organized This Week in London

London, England.—Countless millions of flies, yet unborn, have a rough time awaiting existence in the national campaign, in which it is estimated at least 2,000,000 people from Dover to Stornaway will take part, is now being organized against them and mobilization will take place during national health week, which has opened and will continue until April 16.

In these seven days a crusade of health will be conducted in 300 districts areas, and the common cause for it to be one of the chief enemies.

The latest news of the fly does not begin until about June—perhaps a little earlier if the weather is warm and dry—and it will take three months to arm and drill the regiments who are to do battle against him. In the meantime from 80,000 to 100,000 voluntary workers, starting in health week, will distribute literature setting out, pictorially, the criminal career of the average house fly.

Doctor Evans, county medical officer for Herts, who is one of the generals in the coming war, wishes to see flies no commoner than rooks. Broadly speaking, of course, we want to exterminate the house fly as a common danger to mankind, he said to a newspaper representative, but if you only ran across them as often as you see rooks in the country, I think we should be safe.

We do not advocate the crude practice of putting flies in a window pane, said Doctor Freemantle, it is unpleasant and fosters a sense of cruelty. We say that the only means of success is by attacking them by the million

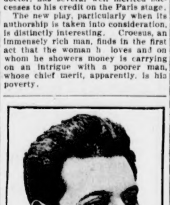
FINDS TIME TO WRITE PLAYS

Millionaire Author Makes Another Millionaire Famous in Classic History His Hero

Paris, France.—J. Salter Hansen has secured the English and American rights of a play by Baron Henri de Rothschild with the appropriate title of 'Croesus.' Baron Henri de Rothschild, who is also a practicing doctor, has several well received successes to his credit on the Paris stage.

The new play, particularly when its authorship is taken into consideration, is distinctly interesting. Croesus, an immensely rich man, finds in the first act that the woman he loves and on whom he showers money is carrying on an intrigue with a poorer man, whose chief merit, apparently, is his poverty.



BARON HENRI DE ROTHSCHILD

We find him in the next act transacting business, buying pictures, lending his friends money, and very much disgusted at the general wish to extract money from him.

In the last act, disguised as a poor clerk, Croesus is happy. He is engaged to a Paris midinette, and she believes him to be earning $60 a month. But one of his own friends, with money he has borrowed from Croesus, has dazzled the girl, and she suggests that Croesus should play the part in her life which in the first act was played by the friend of the woman he loved. Croesus refuses to be loved by himself alone. His money always stands in the way.

Mr. Hansen says that he and Baron Henri de Rothschild will be in London shortly in order to make final arrangements for the production of the play.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MAKING A REPUTATION IN THE WEST

Saskatchewan Man Tells How Tl Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering from Backache and Othc Forms of Kidney Disease

St. Phillips, Sask. (Special).—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is pre lent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighborhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Olshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached, I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh, dry feeling, my limbs were heavy, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

I consulted a doctor, but, as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes, and now I am all right."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always stand the test. Ask your neighbors.

CUT OFF GIRL'S HAIR

Man Then Sells he Lock for Price of a Dinner

Paris.—A man named Chaignon was sentenced a thirteen months' imprisonment for a curious offense recently. He went to a house in the Rue Roy some weeks ago, and while one of the servants, showed her a pair of scissors, and gave her the choice of the loss of her ear or her hair.

I would rather lose my hair, said the girl.

Taking off a handkerchief in which her head was wrapped, she showed the man that she had cut her hair so closely that he wounded her in several places. He sold it afterwar s for the price of a dinner.

You will go to prison for th teen months, said the judge. Your ime ought to be Chaignon, not Chaignon.

Not Tending to Business

A country doctor was recently called upon to visit a patient who resided at a distance. Arriving at his destination he tied his horse to a tree near by, and walked towards the house.

It happened that work was in progress on a new well, of which the doctor knew nothing until he found himself sinking into the earth. He fell just far enough to be unable to get out of the hole unassisted, and yelled lustily for help.

When he was finally pulled up his temper remarked: I say, doctor, you had no business down there.

So, I hadn't, replied the doctor. Don't you know, continued his rescuer, you ought to leave the well alone and look after the sick.

ACTRESS ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Strange Drama of Misplaced Affection Now Before Tribunal in Naples

Naples, Italy.—Yvonne de Villespreux, a fascinating actress, who formerly belonged to a dramatic company run by Dino Galli, herself a most brilliant light comedy artist, is now standing her trial here for killing her lover, Dr. Ettore Turdo.

The case is replete with psychological interest. One evening in November, 1909, when the Galli company was performing at the Quirnal Theatre, Rome, Turdo, who had just won high university honors in medicine, was introduced to Villespreux by Signorina Materlan, a young actress friend of hers in the same company. All supped together, with a party of youths of the smart set in the capital.

Villespreux was so impressed by the assiduous court paid her by Doctor Turdo that next day she accepted his invitation to live with him, and bargained with Esterina to yield her claim for a consideration of 300 francs. About Christmas time Turdo acted from his lover, as an order had come from Naples to attend his brother Luigi, a barrister, and a violent morphiamaniac.

Hither, in the beginning of March, 1910, came also the Dina Galli company, a snow mountain and there fresh lover, but after persistent entreaties of Villespreux consented to again live with her, although Turdo had never contributed a penny towards her maintenance and her pay was only $1 a day.

Thenceforth she performed the most menial offices for the morphia maniac brother, and with the consent of the medical attendants, arranged for a continuous stream of pretty artist visitors to distract his mind. Suddenly the maniac conceived a strong dislike for her, and during one of his drug fits accused her of aspiring to marry into their noble family. A violent struggle ensued, in which she attacked him vigorously, and in her self severely cut on the hand by broken glass.

Next evening, March 9, the other residents in the boarding house she had the continuous alarm

"SOCIETY" EGGS

How People of Denmark are Protected by Co-operation With Farmers

The wise consumer in Denmark asks his grocer for "society" eggs.

The wise farmer in Denmark is a member of the Dansk Andels-Aegexport—the Danish Co-operative Egg Export Society.

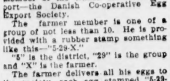
The farmer member is one of a group of not less than 10. He is provided with a rubber stamp something like this—"5-29-X."

"5" is the district, "29" is the group and "X" is the farmer.

The farmer delivers all his eggs to the society, each egg stamped "5-29-X." The eggs go to a packing center, and thence to the co-operative retail societies to be sold to the consumers.

A consumer complains: "One of the half-dozen eggs I bought yesterday was bad. The stamp was '5-29-X.'"

"So!" says the manager and refers to a little book.



THE EGG MARK THAT MAKES THEM ALL FRESH IN DENMARK.

Then he writes to group 29 in district 5 that X has passed off a bad egg. Group 29 looks up X, who cannot deny the testimony of the stamp on the egg shell.

"It is your first offense, X," says group 29; "you must pay a fine. Don't let it happen again!"

X is more careful next time. The second fine would be much heavier. The third time he would be expelled from the Society.

That is why the farmers of Denmark are practically all members of the co-operative societies and why they very, very seldom sell rotten eggs. The public knows that "society" eggs are fresh. The public and the dealers alike are suspicious of the farmer who is not a society man.

There are 550 of these egg "groups" in Denmark. They do a trade amounting to about a million dollars a year.

Rumered C.P.R. Transfer

A CALGARY REPORT

Mondays issue of the Calgary "News - Telegram", contains the following:

It is stated in railroad circles that an important change will soon be made in officials connected with the C.P.R. Department of Natural Resources in this city. J. S. Dennis, who has been assistant to the president for some time, has been or will be transferred to Montreal and P.L. Naismith, now manager, will be promoted to assistant president.

Although a change to this effect has been contemplated for some time, according to information received, only recently the final decision was arrived at. When the new officials will occupy office is not stated, but it is generally thought that it will be within the next few weeks. The heads of departments in the building of the natural resources dept. claim that they have heard nothing of the new appointment, but dispatches from the east and south to the effect that Mr Dennis will go to Montreal are held to be sufficient evidence that the company intends making the change even if the appointment has not already been publicly announced.

Pedigrees and Pay

The time to pay for a pedigree is when it is delivered. While most breeders are honourable, many are procrastining, some are negligent and a few are downright dishonest.

In order to protect themselves against loss at the hands of the procrastining and negligent, buyers of pure bred animals will do well when dealing with breeders of whose honesty they have no knowledge, to with-hold a part of the purchase money till the pedigree is supplied or at least to deposit it in a bank to be paid upon delivery of a proper certificate of registration. This can be done without exposing either buyer or seller to any risk and is perfectly fair to both. My experience with bank managers is that they are always willing to perform this service for the protection of their patrons.

As a rule the buyer pays over his money or writes his cheque for the full amount at the time of purchasing and the seller promises to forward a pedigree as soon as possible, then after a year or more of waiting he wakes up to the fact that he has been "done". Sometimes he has sold the progeny of these animals with a promise to supply pedigrees and he finds himself exposed to the danger, not only of disgrace, but also of an action for damages. Now all of this could easily have been avoided by the exercise of a little caution at the time of buying.

The time of year is at hand when every person, who contemplates buying a pure bred animal, should keep in mind the warning contained in our opening sentence, that the time to pay for a pedigree is when it is delivered.

"Strathmore" Woman Reported Missing

The statement is made that a Strathmore woman named Miss Selz is being sought for, in a despatch from Spokane, Washington, published in Monday's "Calgary Herald". Inquiries made hereabouts fail to elicit any information regarding anyone of that name having been resident here, or of her parents. The despatch states that Miss Selz' mother is dying in Strathmore, dut Dr Givin, the local physician, states that he does not know of anyone in the district of the name or any resembling it at present in illhealth. The following is the despatch published:

SPOKANE, Wash., May 4.—A woman known to the police only as Marian, is sought in the belief that she may know something of the mysterious disappearance of Miss Florence Selz, of Strathmore. This woman Marian and Miss Selz both are trained nurses and roomed together at the Barrington Hotel, after being graduated from Sacred Heart Hospital. Neither can be found at the hotel. The scene of the search for Miss Selz, known here as Florence Simms, shifted to-day to Wardner, Idaho. The police have information that either one or the other of the nurses may be found in that city. No further word has been received of the condition of Mrs Selz, the mother of the missing girl, who is reported dying in Strathmore.

STRATHMORE TRADING CO.
GENERAL STORE

IT DOESN'T COST YOU ANY MORE

To deal with the merchant who advertises. In fact it costs you less. The man who advertises is he who has something he is not ashamed to tell the world about, either in value or price.

You will not find a progressive storekeeper, one who is doing a large business, whether it be in Calgary or in Strathmore, who does not advertise. Why? Because he knows he can display his goods before the people better through the newspaper than even through his window display.

Mr. or Madam Customer: Do your business with the man who advertises. He is a live one. You get a better variety at his store, and his stock will be fresher, because he turns it over faster. You can depend that his goods are reasonable in price, because he would not advertise them unless they were.
